

Jane's Story (Identity Protected)

Some of us have experienced a toothache and maybe even short funds for getting it taken care of. Jane didn't just have those; she also had an abusive partner who gave her no cash and no car. For a year, she struggled with pain in a molar. She coped by putting salt, heat and ice on it -- temporary relief a caring neighbor in her apartment building told her about. But when the pain reached the nerve and created an unbearably painful abscess, Jane reached out to a childhood friend for help. Her friend paid for her Uber ride and we were able to get her out of pain through the Agape Grant Fund. Jane's experience with us was so inspiring to her that she hopes to someday help others in her situation access needed dental care.
